Jasper Park

Jasper Park, the largest mountain park in the world, is situated in the Rocky Mountains in the Province of Alberta. It has many miles of motor roads, with pony trails penetrating to every point of interest in the park.

This park has the largest glacial area, highest mountains, and glacial fed lakes south of Alaska.

Those interested in mountain climbing will find Swiss guides available. Some of the highest peaks can be reached by motor car, while horses are available to reach distant points.

For those who prefer to spend their holidays on the trail, and camp out in the mountains, there are well equipped pack outfits, who will provide horses, guides, food and camping equipment.

Saddle horses are available by the day, week or month.

The town of Jasper, with a population of about 1500 people, is connected with the outside world by the Canadian National Railway and a motor highway via Edmonton, the capital of Alberta, and the Banff-Jasper highway.

There is also an information Bureau, Chamber of Commerce, and Guides and Trailman's Association, all of whom will be glad to help you make your holiday in Jasper Park a success.
